GIBB'S FARM Introduces Farm Forest Dinner Experience

Karatu, Tanzania --- October 25th, 2007 --- Guests to GIBB'S FARM can now experience fine dining beneath the stars. Located in the recently established Namnyak Village, in the quiet calm of the GIBB'S FARM forest estate, the Farm Forest Dinner is more than just a meal.

Namnyak residents barbeque meat traditional style for the dinner guests.

Guests are invited to walk through the forest to the village, where they are greeted by the Namnyak residents, and offered drinks around the bonfire and an appetizer of traditional Maasai-style barbequed meat. A four-course meal follows on a simple wooden platform set with camp-style tables and chairs, lit only by the moon and a few candles. A Land Rover awaits the travelers' return to the Farm at the end of the evening.

Tour operators are requested to book the Farm Forest Dinner venue at least a week in advance.

There is a $20 surcharge per person for groups of 16-40 people. For smaller groups, please contact John at johnc@gibbsfarm.net to enquire about surcharge rates.

About Namnyak Village

Namnyak Village was recently established in the GIBB'S FARM forest valley to provide a grazing area for the FARM'S cattle and donkeys, and a home for the valley's caretakers. Leskar, Mayon and Maruna are employed to care for the animals and the forest facilities. One of GIBB'S FARM'S 'self-governed' staff villages, the residents of Namnyak have recently built their own traditional Maasai home, where they sleep, never too far from their cattle.

The Namnyak village boma was built by a team from Monduli village.
